

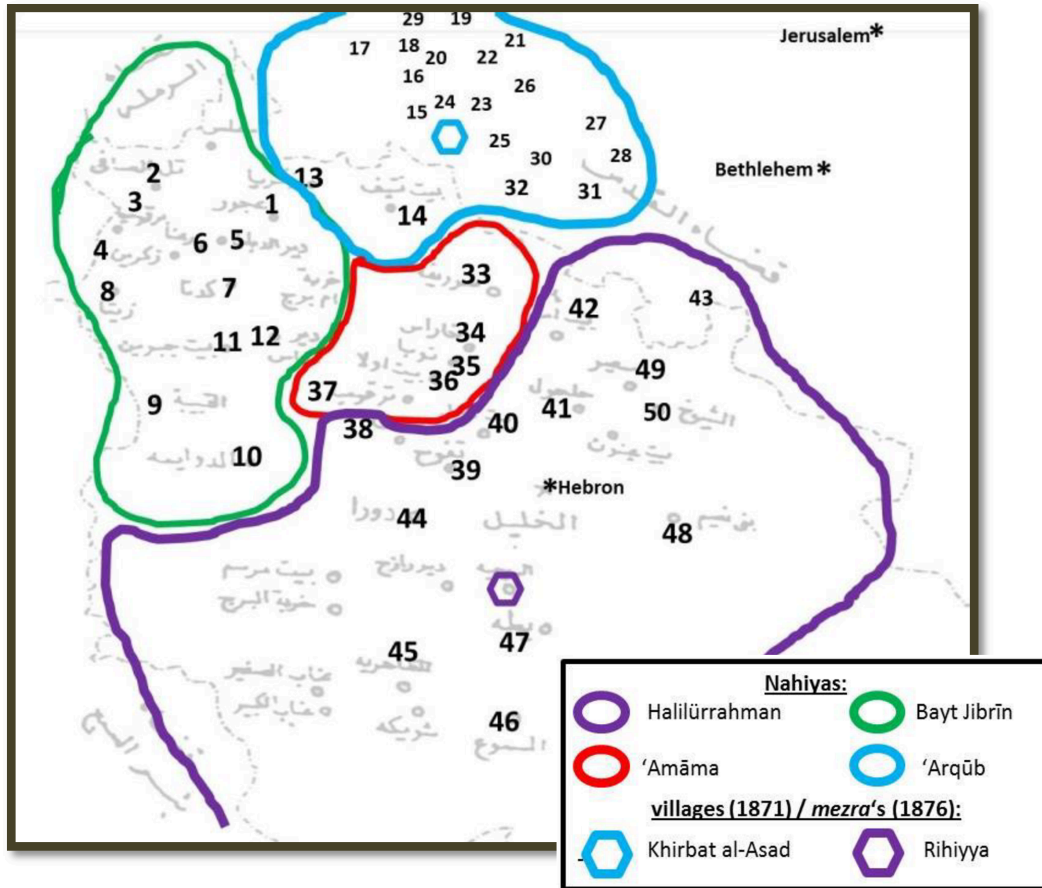

Image 1.1

Charting the Path of the Emlak commission(s) in the Hebron district, 1876, according to the organization of the Esas-ı Emlak register

The basis for this map (in grey), is a map of the Hebron district according to its British Mandate-era borders (1922-1948).<sup>140</sup> The outer borders of the nahiya as drawn do not necessarily include villages' agricultural lands. In 1876 the borders of the Hebron district exceeded its Mandate-era borders to the north. These "extra-territorial" villages have been placed by spatial alignment using the 1930s topographical maps drawn by Mandate-era Commissioner of Lands and Surveys, F.J. Salmon.<sup>141</sup>

<sup>140</sup> Source: The map is posted on the Palestinian News and Information Agency (Wafā) website: <http://www.wafainfo.ps/atemplate.aspx?id=2416> , accessed 1 July 2015.

<sup>141</sup> INL, Map Division: Sheet 9, Ramle map, 1:100,000, printed December 1942.